

Improving the health of the people in our communities by providing quality, compassionate care to everyone, every time

Dear Expectant Parent:

We appreciate that you have recently signed up for a tour of our Mother/Baby Center ahead of your child's birth. Over the past few days, we have received questions about whether we will be proceeding with the tours as scheduled, given the recent Coronavirus containment initiatives. The safety of our Patients, Caregivers and visitors is always our top priority. As you may know from the news coverage, the focus at the moment is to "flatten the curve", which is essentially to slow the spread of the virus to ensure that adequate resources remain available for all who need them.

One of the most effective methods to achieve slowing the spread of the virus at this moment is social distancing. To support the community-wide social distancing efforts, we will be cancelling our Expectant Parent Tours until further notice. The tours will be offered again once this precaution is no longer necessary.

We regret not being able to offer the Expectant Parent Tours at this time and hope that when we can reschedule, you will be available to join us. In the meantime, we appreciate your patience and support as we make these schedule changes.

Please find links below to a video with Sparrow's Chief Medical and Quality Officer, along with Dr. R. Dale Jackson, Director of Emergency Medical Services and Preparedness, that addresses many common questions about Coronavirus, as well as a Sparrow website resource:

<https://youtu.be/d9EpDu7SDKI>

Please go to www.Sparrow.org/Coronavirus for more resources.

Thank you and be well